

BOOKS

LIVING FASHIONABLY

A glimpse inside the homes of style's leading lights

As Simon Doonan puts it in his introduction, Todd Selby's new book Fashionable Selby is 'heady nectar' indeed. The New York-based author, a photographer and blogger whose website (<http://theselby.com>) pictures interesting people in their homes, has gained entry to the houses and studios of some of fashion's finest. Capturing established names such as Isabel Marant, as well as more eccentric practitioners, the book is a rich source of envy, fascination and inspiration, including (at its most flamboyant) the curator Simon Costin's giant, sofa-bound Humpty Dumpty. □ 'Fashionable Selby' (£22.99, Abrams) is published on 18 March.

Clockwise from above: photographer and blogger Todd Selby's shots of Maarten Spruyt in Amsterdam. Christian Astuguevieille's page from the book. Inside Simon Costin's London home. Pascale Mussard's spread. Photos taken at Maison Lemarié in Paris

This orange box in crocodile was transformed into a Swiss cuckoo clock that neighs, by Marina Chustenet.

A Kelly handle meets a crystal block = a doorstep.

PHOTOGRAPHS: © TODD SELBY, SARAH LEE/EYEVINE, PHOTO: MATTHEW BULLEN, COPYRIGHT: MICHAEL CRAIG-MARTIN, WILD FLOWERS BY SU BLACKWELL, PHOTOGRAPH: NIGEL BARKER